For every three animals to be fed, add four quarts of meal with just enough of water to meisten it, and let it stand for several to the st ral hours, or, if practicable, till incipient fermentation has commenced and a slight acidity is perceptible. In this state feed it to your animals, and you will find that not a particle will be refused by them, and that they will continue in better condition than when fed exclusively on any other feed. If desirable, the process of preparing the food may be further systematized by having several troughs for mixing the ingredients. This will enable the feeder to prepare food in advance of his wants, and consequently to have a feed always ready at the hour it is wanted. Because of a great success in most of the European States, its introduction in the United States was intended more esperially for those of our Father Land scattered here and there over the face of this mighy country. Meeting with great success among them, I now offer it to the American public, knowing that its truly medicinal virtues must be ack nowledged. Benefic al effects will be experienced from its use, for many diseases arising from disorders of the stomach, such as Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Debility, Constipation of the Bowels Cramps, Chelic, Cholera Morbus, etc.

It is particularly recommended to those persons whose constitutions may have been impalied by the continued use of ardent spirits, or other forms of dissipation. Generally instantaneous in effect, it finds its way directly to the seat of life, thrilling and quickenit g every nervo, mising up the drooping spirits, and in fact infusing new health and vigor into the system.
